About the MEDICI

The Medici Gallery and Coffee House has been a fixture of Hyde Park since 1955. In the beginning, we just sold art and coffee from a tiny shop in the back of the Green Door Bookstore. Eventually, we added pizza and hamburgers and have been growing ever since. Over the years, we've been a lot of things to many people. We've been a hippie haven, a student hang-out and a late-night urban oasis for generations of south siders. During the sixties, the Medici was a hotbed of anti-war activity (the Conspiracy Seven hung out here), which made our restaurant unpopular among more conservative neighbors. We've changed a lot over the years, but a devoted staff and commitment to good food and service remains the same. The majority of what we serve is made from scratch by people who care. We are proud to be locally owned, environmentally friendly and socially responsible.

Thanks for CHOOSING the MEDICI!
